GLOSSARY

ANGOSTURA BITTERS – The salt and pepper for bartenders. Bitter and strong spirit that's usually used in small amounts in cocktails, to raise other flavors and bring depth. From Trinidad & Tobago.

ANGOSTURA ORANGE BITTERS – Just as its big brother Angostura Bitters, its used in cocktails to raise other flavors and bring depth. But instead of bitter and strong its more as the name says more citrus driven acidity, but still strong and bitter.

FALERNUM - A sweet syrup or liqueur used in Caribbean and tropical drinks. Contains flavors of almond, ginger, lime, and sometimes vanilla, cloves, and allspice.

CLARIFIED – A so called “milk – Washing” an old method that can massively enhance the quality of a cocktail and make the flavors rounder. The Acidity of the cocktail helps the milk form curdles to act as a filter for the cocktail to pour through STIFF – A so called “Stiff cocktail” refers to a drink that has a high alcohol content, making it quite potent. These cocktails are typically made with a large proportion of spirits compared to mixers, resulting in a stronger taste and a more intense effect. Few examples of stiff cocktails are the Negroni, Old Fashioned and so on.
